Compliance without catastrophe: insights from both sides of the regulatory divide

Businesses worldwide face an ever-increasing burden of compliance and regulatory scrutiny. Responding to regulatory queries and inquests is a full-time job, particularly when the requests are unexpected or the targets unprepared. Throwing more people at the problem is not sustainable.

Hosted by ACC Australia and Nuix, this exclusive discussion will present findings from Nuix's 2021 Global Regulator Report, an in-depth survey of 31 financial and competition regulators in 18 countries including Australia. We will examine what the report findings mean for Corporations, share examples of the risks companies encounter when they get this wrong, and the return on investment of a proactive 'regulatory-ready' strategy. We will also talk about the burdens and benefits of preparing data for regulatory compliance, litigation and other investigations; protecting it from cyberthreats; and maintaining good data hygiene and governance.
