As per our discussion, the Australian Government recently released the Government Response to Royal Commission into the Robodebt Scheme (November 2023).

The Government Response accepted the recommendation from the Royal Commission relation to learning and development, training or induction on essential knowledge required for public servants. This may have implications for ASIC in relation to our induction process and learning/training modules we provide to new staff on commencement and as refresher course. It may also have some other implications for ASIC other learning or community of practice networks i.e. establishing internal knowledge college.
