How we developed this commentary

The managed investment industry asked for our feedback on compliance plans lodged with us. This commentary summarises the better compliance plans submitted to us and is a practical guidance for members of the industry.

This document is not a checklist for compliance with the Corporations Act 2001 (Corporations Act). You should also refer to our Policy Statement 132 Managed investments: Compliance plans [PS 132]. Although this commentary reflects current compliance methodology it must not be used as a substitute for Australian Standard® AS 3806–1998: Compliance programs and other compliance information.

Review of approved compliance plans

Between 1 July 1998 and July 1999 we reviewed over 300 compliance plans that had been submitted for approval. Our reviews highlighted a wide variety of styles and content in compliance plans. We welcome this variety as it reflects the diversity in the nature of managed investment schemes and the scale of their operations.

However, some plans did not reflect how the responsible entity (RE) would operate and therefore came under greater scrutiny. Many plans were only registered after we extensively reviewed them. In our review of plans we:

- compared the plans against [PS 132], which sets out our policy on compliance plans;
- separated the plans into industry type, ie financial assets, property and agricultural;
- reviewed each plan noting which sections and operations were used consistently in plans for each industry group; and
- for each section or operation, noted examples that stood out in clarity, format and meeting compliance objectives.

Further review in 2003

Between June 2003 and August 2003 we conducted an additional review of surveillance activities, breach notifications and associated compliance plans relating to the period 1 July 2001 to May 2003. This review covered:

- qualified compliance plan audit reports lodged with ASIC;
- breach notifications about inadequacies in compliance plans or breaches of compliance plan provisions reported to ASIC; and
- surveillance activities carried out by ASIC which discovered breaches of compliance plans.

These reviews highlighted a number of concerns about the quality of compliance plans, identified a number of plans that were inadequate and a number of instances of non-compliance with plans. In some cases the inadequacies were general in nature and in other cases the issues related to specific compliance measures not being included in a plan or being inadequately set out in the plan.

Choosing examples for this commentary

The comments and suggestions in this commentary are based on compliance plans, which we believe contribute to an effective compliance program. The commentary on operational procedures includes two examples for the different activities undertaken. We found that many plans included good and bad parts. Therefore, the first example is often a combination of different plans. However, the second example is taken from an actual compliance plan we have reviewed.

Other commentaries

We recognise the diversity of the managed investments industry. Therefore we have produced separate commentaries on compliance plans for:

- financial assets;
- property;
- agricultural schemes; and
- mortgage schemes.

We have not produced separate commentaries for different operational structures.

Features of better plans

Use plain language

Better plans use:

- plain English and avoid legal or industry jargon;
- a simple structure including a contents list and clear headings; and
- meaningful words to describe what is actually done, eg “a documented due diligence process is applied to each Product Disclosure Statement. The compliance manager is responsible for ensuring the process takes place and that it has been carried out properly.” This means that compliance with the plan can be audited against these measurable standards. (Avoid vague terms such as “appropriate”, “adequate” or “sufficient”.) See [PS 132] at [PS 132.4] and [PS 132.17]–[PS 132.19].

Better plans also include:

- an overview about the plan, its scope, aim and where it sits in the RE’s compliance and management framework.
- a section to explain “how to use” the plan, eg in some plans you need to read some sections first before you can understand how other sections need to be applied. A how to use guide is helpful and assists the many users of the compliance plan.

State who must do what by when

Better plans focus on the tasks staff must do. Staff will see them as “documents for our lawyers” if plans do not tell them this. With better plans staff can easily find out:

- who is responsible for a certain task and when, or how often, that task must be done;
- how they can meet these obligations; and
- how their work will be monitored.

However, better plans also give staff enough information about the legal concepts and requirements so that they can quickly apply that knowledge in their day-to-day tasks.

Plans that state who, or what position, is responsible for certain tasks create a sense of ownership of tasks. This also makes it easier to monitor such plans.

Describes monitoring and reviewing activities

Better plans state when reporting on compliance must take place. They state specific dates or use such terms as “no less than monthly”. (“Regular” is meaningless when describing the frequency of reporting.)

When detailed procedures are described in another document, the better plans state how compliance with those procedures is monitored and how the procedures are reviewed. However, only high level procedures are described in the plan document. Individual tasks that are part of their procedures are better contained in other documents in order that they can be changed easily.

Better plans clearly outline:

- how breaches are reported and who is responsible for rectifying them; and
- what action needs to be taken if the plan is breached.

Better plans state “how and when” the plan will be reviewed so that it continues to comply with the Corporations Act and the Constitution. These plans are better equipped to ensure that the plan complies with the Corporations Act by continuing to be adequate.

There are no limitation or exclusion clauses in the better plans. Nor do they delegate the obligations of the compliance committee.

Monitoring compliance

Generally we found that the better compliance plans had been extensively reviewed by the business. We found they were more likely to reflect:

- the business processes in place to ensure compliance; and
- the measures used by the business to monitor and accurately report on compliance and the monitoring of breaches.

We note that the better plans clearly address the structure of the RE, in particular the outsourcing risks of special purpose REs (or REs for hire).

There was a great deal of variation in the level of detail in the plans. Not surprisingly, plans for smaller entities contained more detailed procedures that reflected their flatter and smaller structures. Larger entities referred to detailed procedures in internal documents.

Some plans did not contain enough detail to be audited. Often we saw plans that were so vague that the organisation would not know whether the plan had been breached.

The better plans were clear about:

- what the obligation was;
- what procedures were in place to meet that obligation;
- how those procedures were monitored; and
- who was responsible for monitoring compliance with that procedure.

The better plans, when referring to documents that contained procedures, detailed how the procedures are monitored and updated.

Compliance with procedures

In our review undertaken in 2003 it was noted that a large number of qualified compliance plan audit reports are being lodged with us due to inadequate monitoring of compliance plan procedures, or due to non-compliance with procedures. It is vital that compliance plans include adequate procedures for monitoring compliance with the compliance plan and adequate resources are devoted to this role. The key findings in this area were:

- Qualification of audit reports due to breaches of the financial conditions of a RE's licence and the failure to lodge scheme financial statements or compliance plan audit reports with ASIC within the required time period.
- Plans that included detailed compliance procedures in attachments, after the main body of the plan, had more instances of non-compliance with procedures.
- Plans that required one person to monitor a number of the procedures had more compliance plan audit qualifications for non-compliance. This highlights the need to ensure that only persons with adequate time and experience are assigned to monitor compliance with procedures.
- Persons nominated for compliance monitoring having other significant and possibly conflicting duties, eg being the compliance officer and the managing director of the RE. In these circumstances, there is a greater chance of non-compliance with the procedures in the plan. When drafting the plan care should be taken that those assigned to compliance plan roles do not have conflicting duties.
- The most common reason why compliance plan audit reports were qualified was the failure of the RE to comply with compliance plan requirements for the financial conditions of the dealers licence.
- Breaches of plans also occurred because distributions of income to investors were not paid on time, were not paid at all or incorrect payments were made. This was due to plans not dealing adequately with the requirements for calculation of distributions or because plans included inadequate procedures for the monitoring of distributions.

Adequacy of procedures

Based on our review in 2003, we have set out below a summary of the major issues that caused plans to be inadequate, which would apply to any type of compliance plan. We recommend the consideration of these issues when preparing a plan.

- Plans which were a standard or model plan (“Off the Shelf Plan”) or primarily based on an Off the Shelf Plan were found to result in a larger number of qualified audit reports and breach notifications to ASIC relating to inadequate plan procedures and/or non-compliance with procedures in a plan. This emphasises the importance of plans being prepared that are specifically written for the type of scheme and the individual business to be operated.
- Plans in which the compliance procedures were set out in a narrative style as opposed to a table format were found to result in more breaches of compliance plan procedures and more inadequate plans. We do not necessarily recommend any particular style of plan, however, it should be simple to monitor and audit compliance.
- Compliance procedures for ensuring financial conditions were complied with were sometimes inadequate. They were not detailed enough to cover all the requirements of the financial conditions set out in the licence; in particular there was often was no procedure to check compliance with all the licence conditions.
- The failure to report breaches of the plan to the board of directors of the RE and/or compliance committee was a common matter reported as a breach of plans by auditors. Plans need to include procedures for checking that the RE reports breaches of plans.
- We also noted that we are issuing an increasing number of interim and final stop orders on Product Disclosure Statements (PDSs). It was apparent that due diligence being carried out on PDSs and procedures in plans for review of PDSs needs to be improved. In particular forecasts were included in PDSs for which there was no reasonable basis and where the disclosure of fees and expenses was inadequate.

Specific issues identified from the review which relate to property schemes include:

- scheme property not being valued at periods required by the scheme constitution as the compliance plan did not include adequate provisions to ensure valuation was done;
- scheme property such as rental income being held by a real estate agent who is not a scheme custodian.

Use of references for advice

Better plans:

- refer to Australian Standard® AS 3806–1998: Compliance programs; and
- reflect other compliance plans they have, for example, plans for trade practices, life insurance and superannuation requirements.

1 Commentary on fundamentals of the structure of plans

1.0 Contents page

Our staff found that compliance plans containing a contents page were much easier to review.

We also anticipate that as compliance plans are a working document and are expected to be used on a frequent basis by numerous parties, a well planned contents page will:

- reduce time spent locating relevant clauses; and
- provide an overview of the scope of the compliance plan.

We found that in better plans, the contents page was not too detailed, and was only one to two pages in length.

The best plans highlighted areas users are most likely to regularly look for, eg operational matters such as valuation of scheme property.

1.1 Purpose of plan

We found that good plans contained contextual information to assist the users of a compliance plan. Many users are unlikely to have been involved in drafting the document or have a compliance background. These plans contained a brief explanation of:

- the scope of the compliance plan;
- the aim of the compliance plan; and
- how the compliance plan fits into the RE's compliance and other management reporting framework.

This information is likely to be very helpful to the auditor as well as to us in understanding the RE's approach to compliance.

Plans that did not contain this type of contextual information were more difficult to understand and in our view reflected a lack of thought about the role of the plan and a lack of commitment to it working in practice.

Example

1.1 Purpose of this plan

Set out main objective of plan, eg:

This compliance plan sets out the key processes, systems and measures the RE will apply to ensure compliance with:

- Corporations Act;
- scheme constitution;
- industry practice standards relevant to the scheme; and
- internal organisational standards and culture.

Comment on how the plan sets out to achieve this, eg:

This plan is a "how to" document, providing sufficient detail on:

- the obligations which must be met by the RE;
- what measures or procedures are in place to comply with these obligations; and
- how compliance with those measures and procedures will be monitored.

This plan also details the risks of not complying with these obligations, and how breaches are to be reported and addressed.

The description of measures in place allows RE staff with compliance responsibilities to identify what procedures they are responsible for monitoring and how often they have to report on compliance or otherwise with those measures.

This plan must be integrated into the operations of the business and its use is not optional.

A statement of the organisation's compliance commitment is not often seen in compliance plans. However we feel that the better plans reflected a higher level of ownership when they clearly outlined the organisation's level of commitment to compliance, eg:

The organisation wants to achieve a compliance culture where each staff member owns compliance, and immediately reports and addresses breaches as far as practicable.

We want our staff to not only do the right thing, but know how to do it. Failure to report a breach is treated seriously and as such, the organisation adopts a no blame policy in relation to breaches but not so in relation to failure to report.

1.2 How to read this plan

It was not easily apparent in many plans how various parts of the plan linked or affected other parts. Indeed on occasions when applicants were asked to explain how the plan worked they had difficulty answering. In particular, the better plans focused users to read the sections that describe the scheme and where they, as responsible officers, fit into the compliance framework.

Most compliance plans reviewed are targeted at ASIC whereas the best ones targeted the many users. For this reason very few REs addressed this important point.

Example

1.2 How to read this plan

It is vital that users of this plan understand their role in its effective implementation. The operational procedures noted in section 3 do not provide enough information on their own and there are several sections of the plan that must be read by all users of this document in order to fully understand their responsibilities.

Sections that are considered essential reading, in addition to comments on procedural areas specific to the user are:

- 1.1 Purpose of the plan
- 1.3 Description of the scheme
- 2.1 Compliance framework
- 2.2 Role of the compliance committee
- 2.3 Role of the compliance officer
- A1 Glossary
- A2 Organisational structure chart
- A6 Pro forma breach report.

The plan is structured in such a way that it clearly identifies the legal responsibility that must be complied with. The procedures described are part of processes used by the RE to meet that obligation. The plan identifies:

- what part of the business is responsible for carrying out those procedures;
- how compliance with those procedures will be monitored; and
- who is responsible for monitoring compliance.

That person is also responsible for reporting compliance and non-compliance with those procedures to the Compliance Officer. The frequency of reporting is also stated.

1.3 Description of the scheme

In many instances it was not readily apparent what type of scheme the compliance plan related to. Some better plans reflected the understanding that a number of users of compliance plans will not be involved in the operation of the scheme and may need to review the compliance plan in isolation. These plans contained a brief description of the structure and purpose of the scheme for users so they could understand the risks facing the scheme and, hence why certain compliance procedures have been included or omitted. Its purpose was also to enable users to assess if the plan is adequately focused on the most important risk areas. An example is the increased importance of compliance with investment restrictions for an ethical fund compared to funds with broader investment restrictions.

Unfortunately, many plans reviewed failed to comment on the particular risks faced by the RE in operating the scheme and ultimately the risks to investors. Indeed, for a number of plans, it was difficult to even identify the type of asset managed by the scheme. Some plans contained a brief description of the main risks facing the scheme early in the plan or described the scheme later in the compliance plan with the compliance procedure addressing that risk.

ASIC certainly found a brief description early in the plan helpful in terms of review, particularly for unusual or stand alone plans.

Example

1.3 Description of the scheme

The Scheme has been formed for the purpose of acquiring 34 Hotham Street, Redfern in Sydney, New South Wales. The premises are a modern, prominent commercial building comprising two ground floor retail units, three levels of office accommodation and five split levels of basement parking. There are currently nine tenancies, with the lease over secure parking providing approximately one third of the gross rental income of the property.

A property manager independent of the RE will be appointed to manage the property.

Unless renewed or determined earlier, the RE will commence the winding up of the Scheme on the twelfth anniversary of the purchase date of the property.

The overall investment strategy is to provide moderate capital growth, stable income and depreciation allowances for investors.

2 Compliance frameworks described in plans

2.1 Compliance framework/structure

A clear description of the RE's compliance framework or structure was a clear feature of the better plans. Entities included this in the plan to:

- aid in understanding the RE's overall approach to addressing compliance;
- provide background to the RE's compliance reporting structure; and
- provide staff with a clear statement on where the compliance plan sat in the framework.

Better plans reflected the understanding that the procedures and measures in the plan needed to be supported by a sound and workable compliance structure. Even though the structure is described in the RE's licence application some plans provided more detail in the compliance plan. Plans that did not describe the compliance framework were requisitioned. In reviewing plans, we are mindful that the compliance structure is the framework in which the compliance plan sits and, if the fundamental framework does not work, it is unlikely that the compliance plan will achieve the desired outcome.

AS 3806

For more information on compliance frameworks and structures we refer you to the Australian Standard® AS 3806–1998: Compliance programs.

Flowcharts

The better plans contained flowcharts of the compliance reporting structure to provide a clear picture of the compliance process and allow RE staff to quickly ascertain where they fit into the overall framework. They also helped us assess the adequacy of the RE's compliance structure, eg the level of access the compliance manager had to the compliance committee or Board. These are best left as position titles, rather than names of individuals so that the compliance plan does not need to be updated when organisational changes occur.

Monitoring compliance

Not all plans described how compliance with procedures will be monitored. For example:

- will the compliance officer visit the area concerned and talk to staff?
or
- is it a self assessment process which is periodically reviewed by internal or external auditors?

Again this area was the focus of many requisitions by ASIC officers.

Transparent structure

The best plans showed the compliance reporting process in enough detail to enable the Compliance Committee to determine how the reports on compliance with procedures are put together. It was not clear in some plans who was responsible for producing reports for the compliance manager.

Truth in reporting

Few plans described the methodology by which compliance reports would be put together to ensure that the report reflected the correct position on compliance. Surveillances reveal that sanitisation of reports is a real risk area for an entity, as well as guess work at the basic reporting level.

2.2 Role of compliance committee

There was a variety in the level of detail about the function and responsibility of the Compliance Committee. The better compliance plans clearly explained the Committee Members' duties and emphasised the importance of fulfilling their obligations.

A number of REs included a Compliance Committee Charter describing the rules and guidelines to be followed by the Committee as an appendix to the compliance plan. See appendix A3: Compliance committee charter.

Some plans also included the process by which a Compliance Committee member is appointed. Other plans referred to documents outlining this process. It was not always clear how this process was going to be monitored.

Example

2.2 Role of the compliance committee

Compliance committee membership

Included details of minimum number of members, minimum qualifications and appointment process.

Responsibilities

Referred to duties per s601JC, stressing that the Committee must ensure the compliance plan meets the requirements of the Corporations Act on an ongoing basis. Many compliance plans also explained the Committee's procedure for:

- dealing with breaches, including following up on action taken by the RE following recommendations made by the Committee, and reporting to ASIC if the RE has not taken or does not propose to take action to deal with a reported breach;
- ensuring they are made aware of all significant transactions involving scheme assets;
- ensuring the scheme is not trading while insolvent, or is not expected to be. This will include reviewing and approving any additional funding requirements of the scheme;
- assessing if the RE's actions are in accordance with the Product Disclosure Statement, constitution, Corporations Act and in the investors' best interest; and
- ensuring all members of the Committee visit the property(ies) at least once in each 12 month period.

Meetings and reporting

This area included frequency of meetings, quorum and the requirement to take minutes for distribution to the Board. The better plans included a standard agenda as an appendix. See appendix A4: Pro forma compliance committee meeting agenda. This provides the Compliance Officer with a guide to the matters that need to be reported to the Committee at each meeting.

Many plans disclosed the right of the Committee to access information, reports, resources, audit and experts as necessary. Better plans also contain details of when the Committee will report to ASIC and the regular consideration of whether any matters require reporting. We have noted from our review of breach notifications that very few breaches are reported to ASIC by Compliance Committees, even when a scheme RE has gone into external administration or is likely to go into external administration and as a result is unable to be able to carry out its duties as a RE.

2.3 Role of compliance officer

The Compliance Officer features prominently in many plans in relation to reporting and monitoring on some obligations. The better plans explained the Compliance Officer's pivotal roll in the compliance framework and responsibility for liaising between the Compliance Committee and the officers responsible for implementing and monitoring compliance procedures. The best plans stressed the importance of this role and explained the duties clearly.

Several REs achieved this by including in the compliance plan a job, as an appendix, a job description for the compliance officer position and a pro forma report to the compliance committee covering matters that need to be reported on a regular basis. This is not recommended as it then forms part of the compliance plan and must be updated when required.

In some plans the compliance officer has been given too much responsibility and has been made responsible for carrying out most of the compliance monitoring. This may not be appropriate if it means that the compliance officer does not have time to carry out their duties effectively, particularly when they have other duties.

Better plans emphasised that the compliance officer had direct access to the board of directors or the compliance committee to ensure the Officer had the appropriate seniority or "clout".

Example

2.3 Role of the compliance officer

Overview of the role

The compliance officer will ensure adequate internal systems and controls have been implemented to ensure compliance with the Corporations Act, the scheme's constitution, the entity's Australian financial services (AFS) licence, and internal and industry standards. These duties include promoting the compliance culture within the organisation and to external service providers.

The compliance officer is primarily responsible for reviewing compliance on an ongoing basis, reporting on compliance matters, including breaches, to the committee and acting on recommendations of the committee. Matters can be escalated to the Board or ASIC if necessary.

Qualifications, reporting line, frequency and format of reporting

The Compliance Officer must have a minimum of five years experience in the industry and report directly to the compliance committee monthly or more frequently as required. The format of reporting is as per the pro forma report in Appendix A5.

Some plans included other matters such as delegating, use of experts, access to external and internal audit, ensuring committee recommendations are implemented within a set time-frame, records, maintaining knowledge of best practice, ensuring staff have adequate access to procedures manuals, monitoring compliance of the Committee with the Compliance Committee Charter, ranking by significance the matters to be reported to the Committee, etc as applicable.

2.4 Role of audit

It was disappointing that most compliance plans make no mention of the role of internal audit. This included plans prepared by REs who are large financial institutions, with an internal audit service available, who presumably contribute in a particular way to the compliance framework.

The best plans explained the role of both the internal and external auditor in the compliance framework. As noted in section 2.1: Compliance framework, many plans rely on audit to periodically review compliance frameworks that are based on a self assessment process. It is more workable if a reader of such a compliance plan understands the audit's role in order to understand the RE's approach to compliance.

These plans also explained who is responsible for addressing issues raised by internal and external audit and who follows up any recommendations made and ensures they are implemented in a timely manner.

Some plans included provisions that require the compliance plan auditor to be responsible for checking compliance with specific matters. This is not the role of the external auditor, who should not be responsible for day-to-day compliance monitoring.

Example

2.4 Role of audit

The internal audit team is part of the financial management division and reports directly to the board audit committee, who monitor and direct the team's work. The team's role is to confirm that the policies and procedures are operating as expected. Its terms of reference in respect of the plan are approved by the board audit committee following consultation with the compliance committee.

The team will conduct a risk based review of compliance with this plan, focusing on areas considered to be of greatest or emerging risk. All operational aspects of the plan will be reviewed at least every two years. Areas considered high risk will be reviewed at least every six months.

A key objective of the team is to assess the adequacy of the compliance framework and to ensure major issues are promptly identified and addressed.

Copies of all internal audit reports relating to this compliance plan are sent to the board audit committee, compliance committee and external auditor.

The role of the external auditor is to annually:

- examine the plan;
- carry out an audit of compliance with the plan; and
- submit a report to the RE providing an opinion as to whether the RE has complied with the plan throughout the period and if the plan continues to comply with the requirements of the Corporations Act.

2.5 Reviewing and amending the compliance plan

In spite of the obligation for the plan to “continuously comply”, most plans reviewed failed to mention that any periodic review of the compliance plan was required. This was surprising when the environment in which the RE operates is likely to change frequently due to new regulations, new products, restructuring, etc. Quality plans outlined the obligation of the RE to carry out a review of the adequacy of the plan at least annually and after any significant event that they are aware would impact the plan. This sometimes included consideration of reasons for any breaches and the impact on the compliance plan of any issues raised.

Example

2.5 Reviewing and amending the compliance plan

To ensure the compliance plan continues to provide an adequate compliance framework for protection of investors the RE will report to the compliance committee at least annually on the continued adequacy of the plan.

So that the committee is informed of all internal developments, all staff, including internal audit, are instructed to report all proposed changes in operating structure and procedures to the compliance officer. These reports are included in the compliance officer’s monthly report to the compliance committee.

Part of the compliance officer’s role is to remain up to date with all regulatory and industry standard changes. Any such changes that impact the plan are reported to the committee in the compliance officer’s monthly report to the committee.

Subject to the Corporations Act, the Board or the Compliance Committee can amend this plan. The Committee notifies all amendments to the Chairman of the Compliance Committee prior to the approval of the amended plan.

The Compliance Officer is responsible for submitting amended plans to ASIC and ensuring all staff responsible for compliance matters receive notification of the change and an updated copy of the plan.

2.6 Summary of compliance procedures

ASIC found it easier to review plans that clearly separated the different measures used to achieve compliance. The best plans clearly identified the following:

- legal or constitutional obligation;
- procedures in place to satisfy that obligation;
- who was responsible for reporting on whether or not the procedures had been followed;
- how compliance with procedures was monitored;
- who carried out that monitoring; and
- when reporting/monitoring took place.

Some plans were also useful in that they contained a summary of the types of procedures to be employed, identified the officer responsible for monitoring compliance with those procedures, and also indicated the frequency with which the officer must report as to such compliance. The compliance officer and the Compliance Committee could then use the summary as a checklist.

The “responsible officer” is usually the person who is responsible for ensuring a particular procedure is followed and reporting to the Compliance Officer on whether there were any breaches in following the procedure.

Example

2.6 Summary of compliance procedures

Function	Responsible Officer	Reporting frequency	Details of procedure (reference)

3 Operational procedures

The format REs chose to present details of procedures varied considerably. The clearest format incorporated tables including details of the function, the risks of non-compliance, the relevant policies and the compliance procedures. Some REs also grouped together tables covering compliance procedures overseen by the same officer, allowing RE staff to quickly locate information on all areas of compliance they are responsible for.

The best plans showed sufficient detail to allow the responsible officer to know what the responsibilities of the role are, what procedures are required to be performed to fulfil those responsibilities, how they were monitored and reviewed, who to report to and whether compliance checks are automated or manual.

Many plans reviewed refer to procedures manuals and detail contained in agreements rather than including lengthy descriptions of procedures within the compliance plan. This improves clarity and allows procedures to be updated without having to amend the compliance plan. What is often missing though are the measures used to ensure that the procedures contained in the manuals and agreements are followed, working and updated.

An area that was covered poorly in many compliance plans is the reporting of breaches. Industry best practice requires all breaches to be reported even if they have been rectified during the period. This enables the Compliance Committee to have a full picture of the level of breaches that are taking place. Many entities rated breaches as to significance in order that the Compliance Committee may focus on the higher risk breaches that will impact on investors or the RE. The better plans also ensured the committee were aware of systematic breaches and the source of breaches.

Recent surveillances have revealed that often the operational procedures quotes are not the ones actually carried out. Obviously it is important to ensure that the plan actually reflects business practice.

Examples

These are not meant to be procedural best practice, rather they are illustrations of the better examples noted from our review. Content would need to be tailored to the specific scheme and entity operation as well as any further relevant points considered.

3.1 Income

Example 1

Responsible Officer: Financial Controller (FC)

Frequency of Reporting: monthly

Function	Risks	Procedures	Monitoring of procedure
Collect and record all property and investment income due to the Scheme.	Not all income due to the Scheme is received.	Rental income from tenants is paid directly to the custodian. The FC quarterly prepares an income forecast based on rentals per the lease agreements. This forecast is compared to actual income per monthly reports from the custodian. Differences are investigated as soon as detected.	Quarterly rental income forecasts are reviewed by the Board following preparation by the FC. The Compliance Officer reviews the FC's monthly reconciliation of forecast income to actual income and includes these reconciliations in reports to the Compliance Committee.

Example 2

As the property management will be outsourced, the property manager will collect most of the income of the Scheme, acting as custodian.

The property manager will be required to deposit all funds received on behalf of the Scheme to its trust account on the day of receipt.

The property manager will be required to remit to the RE by the 10th day of the following month the net income received during the month. The property manager will be required to provide on the last day of a month a reconciliation of the income and expenses recorded in the general ledger to actual income received and expenses paid during the month. The Scheme Administration must check this.

The Scheme Administration must check that interest income is paid on time and is consistent with the level of deposits held.

3.2 Fees and expenses

Example 1

Responsible Officer: Financial Controller (FC)

The PM sends a summary of approved expenses to be paid for the month with copies of related invoices to the FC who arranges payment. Two directors signatures are required on each cheque. The FC calculates the PM's and the RE's management fee monthly in accordance with details per the Product Disclosure Statement. The FC prepares a list of expenses paid in the month and submits this list monthly with a copy of the month end bank reconciliation to the Compliance Officer (CO).	The CO reviews the FC's report and bank reconciliation and includes them in the CO's report for review by the Compliance Committee. The CO reviews the PM and RE management fee calculation monthly. External audit review expenses paid during the year and recalculate management fees as part of the annual audit.

Notification to employees

The Compliance Officer must notify all relevant employees:

3.15 Reporting breaches

Example 1

Responsible Officer: Compliance Officer (CO)

Frequency of Reporting: Quarterly or following each significant breach

Function	Risks	Procedures	Monitoring of compliance procedures

Refer to risks of non-compliance referred to in sections: 3.1 to 3.13.	At each month end all responsible officers are required to report verbally to the CO whether any breaches or potential breaches have occurred that month. Written reports are sent to the CO at the reporting frequencies noted in section 3: Summary of Compliance Procedures. Significant breaches are reported to the CO immediately. A sequentially numbered breach report is prepared for each reported breach, detailing its nature, its significance, whether it is systematic or an isolated event and any remedial action taken. Refer to appendix: A6: Pro forma breach report. All breach reports are presented to the Compliance Committee. Breach reports remain open until the chairman of the Compliance Committee has signed the report as closed.	The CO maintains a list of all responsible officers who have reported to the CO each month. Any missing reports are followed up. Breach report files are reviewed each quarter by the CO to ensure sequential numbering is complete and that all reports closed in the previous quarter have been signed by the Chairman of the Compliance Committee. A file of all open breach reports is reviewed by the Compliance Committee at each meeting.

Example 2

The Committee Members must report to ASIC and the Board of Directors on the RE's compliance with this Compliance Procedure as the Corporations Act requires (s601JC(1)(b), (c)).

In accordance with s601JC(b) of the Corporations Act, it is the responsibility of the Compliance Committee to report to the Board of Directors known and suspected breaches of Corporations Act and the Constitution. The following guidelines have been established for detecting, rating and addressing breaches. These procedures apply to all relevant Compliance Procedures unless otherwise stated. A breach is broadly classified as a violation of a service agreement by a service provider, a violation of the Corporations Act or the Constitution.

- Each breach is communicated in writing by staff or a service provider to the Functional Head of the relevant Operational Unit as soon as practicable after detection. The Functional Head summarises the breach in a predetermined format and immediately reports the breach to the Compliance Manager. The Compliance Manager must record all breach in the Breach Register that is presented at Compliance Committee meetings. Records of communications regarding the breach are maintained by the relevant Function Head.
- The Functional Head of an Operational Unit uses his or her expertise to determine what may represent an actual breach or a short-term failure by an operational unit and assesses the significance of that breach. Where the Functional head deems the breach to be significant, he/she must report the breach to the Managing Director in addition to the Compliance Manager who will advise the Compliance Committee. The Compliance Manager must report any breach to ASIC in writing no later than 14 days after becoming aware of any matter that may constitute a breach of:
 - Corporations Act, or
 - the Constitution of a Scheme
 - that has had, or is likely to have, a material adverse effect on unit holders interests.
- The Compliance Manager issues a self assessment questionnaire to the Functional Head of each Operational Unit on a quarterly basis. This questionnaire includes a declaration of compliance with the procedures outlined in this Compliance Plan in relation to breaches.

- The Compliance Committee must report to the Board:
 - any breach of the Corporations Act involving any Fund; or
 - any breach of the provisions included in each Fund’s Constitution
 - of which the Compliance Committee becomes aware of, or suspects.
- The Compliance Committee must report to ASIC any breach it becomes aware of, or suspects and has reported to the Board if the Compliance Committee is of the view that the RE has not taken, or does not propose to take, appropriate action.
- Subsequent communication to ASIC (if required by s601FC(1)(l), s601JC(c) or s912D of the Corporations Act) is also forwarded to the Compliance Committee as well as subsequent communications addressing the issue.
- The Compliance Committee must satisfy itself that documentation from management and ASIC is adequate to indicate that the matter has been resolved before deeming the issue closed.

Appendices in a plan

A1 Glossary

Some plans were very helpful in that they included a glossary. If the plan includes technical or organisation specific terms, or if the users are unlikely to have a financial or legal background, then a glossary can be a helpful tool for users.

Example (refers to this document)

A1 Glossary

Compliance committee

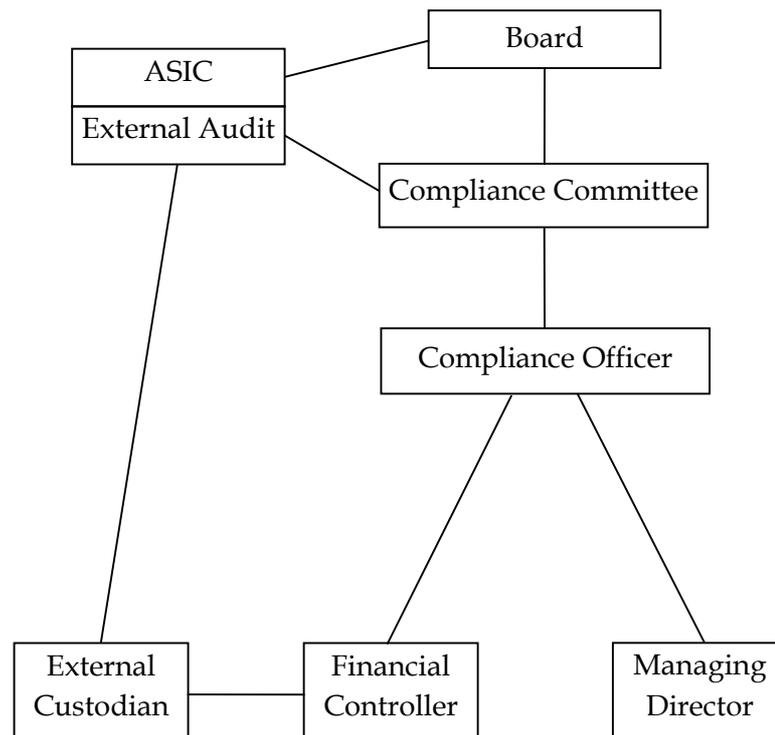

When a Compliance Committee is not required per the Corporations Act, any reference to the Compliance Committee in this document applies equally to the Board of Directors. Refer to section 2.2 for details of the role of the Compliance Committee.

A2 Organisational structure chart

Some plans contained more than one organisational chart, eg one each for compliance reporting, business reporting as well as a wider chart illustrating outsourced activities.

Example

A2 Organisation compliance reporting chart

A3 Compliance committee charter

A number of compliance plans included Compliance Committee Charters. Developing a Compliance Committee Charter that sets out the goals of the Committee may aid in providing clarity of roles and increasing levels of commitment in organisation as well as making the Committee more accountable.

Many Charters aimed to be a practical document describing the rules and guidelines that should be followed by the Committee to fulfil their obligations.

The Compliance Officer's role was sometimes expanded to periodically assess if the Committee is complying with the Charter and whether the Charter reflects any changes to the scheme or the RE's procedures.

In ASIC's view, a Charter can assist the RE to ensure the compliance committee will achieve the role legislation has given it. Assistance to the committee on how the Entity perceives the committee's role is helpful. Indeed, the difficult question of the line between compliance monitoring and business management could be addressed in the Charter.

It would also be helpful if the Charter addressed the importance of "minutes" of meetings. ASIC will review minutes on its surveillance visits. Some minutes reviewed during surveillance failed to reflect the committee as pro-active and asking the hard questions, particularly about the cause of breaches and whether this indicates any potential causes of further breaches or indicates other problems within the organisation. For example, some technical breaches may in fact indicate poor training, accounts backlog, poor record keeping or fraud.

A4 Pro forma compliance committee meeting agenda

A standard agenda for Committee meetings is seen as useful by some entities:

- for the Compliance Officer as a guide to what is required to be prepared for each meeting; and
- as a reminder to Committee members of the issues that need to be addressed at each meeting.

To ensure the Committee focuses on the most important issues some entities prioritise points on the agenda.

Example

A4 Pro forma compliance committee meeting agenda

- (a) Compliance Officer's summary;
- (b) Breach reports;
- (c) Complaints and other correspondence with investors;
- (d) Minutes from previous meeting;
- (e) Proposed amendments to the compliance plan, procedures or agreements;
- (f) Proposed amendments to Corporations Act, industry or internal standards; and
- (g) Other matters.

A5 Pro forma compliance report by responsible officer

Very few plans reviewed addressed the issue of the format of reporting by responsible officers. Compilation of responsible officer compliance reports for reporting to the compliance committee can be simplified if standard format reports are used. Use of a standardised format also ensures that all the areas considered essential by the Compliance Officer are reported on by all responsible officers.
