Special purpose companies

The different types of special purpose companies that can be established on registration are:

Charitable purposes only

A company whose constitution requires it to pursue charitable purposes only and to apply its income in promoting those purposes; and prohibits the company making distributions to its members and paying fees to its directors; and requires its directors to approve all other payments the company makes to them.

Home unit company

A proprietary company:

- that is the proprietor of land on which a building is erected and divided into separate residential areas and areas for common usage
- whose members are entitled to exclusive occupation of one or more of those areas and use of the common areas, and
- which operates solely to facilitate the rights of those members in relation to their exclusive occupation of those residential areas and maintenance of the common areas.

Superannuation trustee company

A company that acts solely as the trustee of a regulated superannuation fund within the meaning of s19 of the Superannuation Industry (Supervision) Act 1993 and whose constitution prohibits the distribution of its income or property among its members.

Other types of companies

A no-liability company (NL) must be a public company. The Corporations Act limits the activities of a NL company to mining purposes only and obliges a NL company's constitution to state, amongst other things, that its sole objects are mining purposes only.

A company limited by guarantee (LMGT) must be a public company. In order for a LMGT company to qualify as a 'special purpose company' as defined by the Corporations (Review Fees) Regulations 2003, its constitution must contain, amongst other things, provisions which limit its activities to charitable purposes only.

Shares issued other than for cash or under a written contract

For public companies

If shares will be issued for other than cash, then a Form 208 Notification of details of shares allotted other than for cash, or a copy of the 'contract' must be lodged.

If the shares will be issued under written contract, then a Form 207Z Certification of compliance with stamp duty law must also be lodged.

For proprietary companies

If shares will be issued under written contract or issued for other than cash, a Form 207Z Certification of compliance with stamp duty law must be lodged.
