Guide: Notification by officeholder of resignation or retirement

This guide does not form part of the form. It is included by ASIC to assist you in completing and lodging the Form 370.

Lodging this notice is optional

You do not have to notify us of your resignation or retirement as an officeholder for a company. Should you wish to do so, you should use this form. To be effective, a copy of the letter of resignation or retirement you sent to the company must be submitted with this form.

The letter you send to the company should include:

- the name of the company
- the name of the officeholder that is resigning or retiring
- the role or roles from which the officeholder is resigning or retiring
- the date from which the resignation or retirement takes effect
- the officeholder's signature.

If the answers to the questions we ask you on this form are different from the information in the accompanying copy of the letter of resignation or retirement you sent to the company, we will contact you for clarification.

If you do notify us on the Form 370, the company is not required to notify us of you ceasing as an officeholder. You can only include details of one officeholder on each Form 370.

The date recorded by ASIC for a ceased director is the date this form is lodged with ASIC only if you lodge this form more than 28 days after the date of cessation. If lodged within 28 days, the date recorded is the date of cessation on this form.

A form may be rejected by ASIC if a company will be left with no directors.

Signature

As the resigning or retiring company officeholder, you must sign this form.

The date you provide in the form for ceasing as an officeholder must not be later than the date you complete and sign this form.

Lodgement period

This form should be submitted as soon as practicable after you send your letter of resignation/retirement to the company.

If this lodgement is notified more than 28 days after the date you ceased as a director, then ASIC may amend the date of cessation to the date which this form is lodged with ASIC.

Lodgement fee

No lodgement or late fees apply.
