REGULATORY GUIDE 168

Product Disclosure Statements: Disclosure and other obligations

July 2025

About this guide

This is a guide for issuers or sellers of financial products who must comply with the Product Disclosure Statements (PDS) requirements, such as product issuers, Australian financial services (AFS) licensees and authorised representatives.

It gives guidance on preparing a PDS that complies with the PDS requirements. It also sets out good disclosure principles, outlines the lodgement and notification requirements for PDSs and gives examples of general disclosure concerns.

About ASIC regulatory documents

In administering legislation ASIC issues the following types of regulatory documents.

Consultation papers: seek feedback from stakeholders on matters ASIC is considering, such as proposed relief or proposed regulatory guidance.

Regulatory guides: give guidance to regulated entities by:

- explaining when and how ASIC will exercise specific powers under legislation (primarily the Corporations Act)
- explaining how ASIC interprets the law
- describing the principles underlying ASIC's approach
- giving practical guidance (e.g. describing the steps of a process such as applying for a licence or giving practical examples of how regulated entities may decide to meet their obligations).

Information sheets: provide concise guidance on a specific process or compliance issue or an overview of detailed guidance.

Reports: describe ASIC compliance or relief activity or the results of a research project.

Document history

This draft guide was issued in July 2025 and is based on legislation and regulations as at the date of issue.

Previous versions:

- Superseded Regulatory Guide 168, issued September 2010, October 2011 and July 2022
- Superseded Policy Statement 168, issued November 2011, May 2005, May 2007, rebadged as a regulatory guide 5 July 2007

Disclaimer

This guide does not constitute legal advice. We encourage you to seek your own professional advice to find out how the Corporations Act and other applicable laws apply to you, as it is your responsibility to determine your obligations.

Examples in this guide are purely for illustration; they are not exhaustive and are not intended to impose or imply particular rules or requirements.

A Overview

Key points

If you are the issuer or seller of a financial product, you must comply with the Product Disclosure Statements (PDS) requirements under the law.

This guide explains the:

- general content requirements for PDSs that product issuers must comply with (see Section B);
- tailored PDS requirements that apply for certain products (see Section C);
- Good Disclosure Principles to consider (see Section E); and
- requirements for lodging a PDS and notifying ASIC (see Section F).

It also gives examples of some general disclosure concerns: see Section D.

The PDS requirements

- RG 168.1 A product issuer or seller must give a PDS to a retail client before recommending or offering to issue or sell a financial product. The purpose of the PDS is to provide clients with sufficient information to make informed decisions about acquiring the financial product.
- RG 168.2 The PDS must meet content requirements specified in the Corporations Act 2001 (Corporation Act), Corporations Regulations 2001 (Corporations Regulations) and ASIC legislative instruments: see RG 168.8–RG 168.13. For some financial products, there are modified content requirements that apply: see, for example, RG 168.51–RG 168.58.
- RG 168.3 The form of PDS given to a retail client will vary depending on the financial product involved. A standard PDS must be given unless:
- the product issuer is required to give a shorter PDS for the financial product (see RG 168.43–RG 168.44 for circumstances where a shorter PDS is required); or
 - the product issuer has chosen to give a Short-Form PDS for the financial product (see RG 168.40–RG 168.41 for circumstances where a Short-Form PDS can be chosen).
- RG 168.4 The PDS will have been prepared by, or on behalf of, a ‘responsible person’ for the PDS: see s1013A(3) of the Corporations Act. In most cases, this is the product issuer, which is the term used for responsible person in this guide.

Note: In this guide, references to sections (s), clauses (cl), chapters (Ch), divisions (Div), subdivisions (Subdiv) and parts (Pt) are to the Corporations Act, unless otherwise specified. References to regulations (reg) and schedules (Sch) are to the Corporations Regulations 2001 (Corporations Regulations), unless otherwise specified.

- RG 168.5 When preparing a PDS, product issuers must comply with the requirements set out in Div 2 of Pt 7.9 of the Corporations Act, related regulations and ASIC legislative instruments.
- RG 168.6 The PDS requirements are generally drafted to apply flexibly to any financial product. This means that we do not provide specific guidance about how the requirements apply to every financial product.

Other ASIC guidance

- RG 168.7 Depending on the circumstances, you may need to consider other guidance we have published on how the PDS requirements apply, as listed in Appendix 1.

B Product Disclosure Statements

Key points

A PDS must be given to a client at or before the time the product issuer or seller makes a recommendation or offer to issue or sell a financial product. A PDS can be provided later in certain circumstances.

There are also certain circumstances where a PDS does not need to be given to the client.

The content requirements for a PDS

- RG 168.8 A PDS must be prepared by or on behalf of a product issuer and must contain sufficient information for a client to make an informed decision about whether to acquire a financial product: see s1013A(3), 1013D(1), 1013E and 1241Q(1).
- RG 168.9 The PDS must be titled 'Product Disclosure Statement' on the cover of, or at or near the front of, the PDS and must be dated: see s1013B and s1013G.
- RG 168.10 The PDS must include the following information (where applicable):
- (a) name and contact details of the issuer and seller of the financial product;
 - (b) fees payable for the financial product;
 - (c) significant risks of the financial product;
 - (d) significant benefits to which the holder of the financial product may become entitled, including how and when those benefits may be provided;
 - (e) other significant characteristics of the financial product;
 - (f) factors affecting returns for the financial product;
 - (g) significant tax implications for the financial product;
 - (h) information about any applicable cooling-off regime;
 - (i) dispute resolution procedures available if there is a complaint about the financial product; and
 - (j) how other information relating to the financial product not contained in the PDS may be accessed: see s1013D (including as modified by s1241T).
- RG 168.11 The Corporations Act modifies the content requirements for PDSs for some financial products: see Subdiv C of Div 2 of Pt 7.9. For example:
- (a) PDSs for investment products must disclose how labour standards or environmental, social or ethical considerations are taken into account in selecting, retaining or realising an investment (see Appendix 2); and

- (b) PDSs relating to foreign passport fund products and enhanced disclosure (ED) securities have additional content requirements (see s1013GA, 1013I and 1013IA).

RG 168.12 There are also modifications to PDS content requirements for certain financial products in Divs 2–2B, 2BA, 2C–2D, 4–4A, 4C–4D and 5AB of Pt 7.9 and Sch 10A to the Corporations Regulations, and in ASIC legislative instruments.

Note: For further information about tailored PDS requirements for these products, see Section C.

RG 168.13 All information contained in a PDS must be worded and presented in a clear, concise, and effective manner: see s1013C(3).

What must be attached to the PDS

RG 168.14 If an application form is required for the issue or sale of a financial product, it must be attached to or accompany the PDS: see s1016A. There are certain exceptions to this requirement, including, for example:

- (a) offers of a superannuation interest without an application; and

Note: See reg 7.9.13 and notional s1016A(2A), as inserted by Pt 6 of Sch 10A to the Corporations Regulations.

- (b) applications to switch between:

- (i) schemes operated by the same responsible entity or related bodies corporate;
- (ii) notified foreign passport funds operated by the same operator or its related bodies corporate; or
- (iii) sub-funds of a corporate collective investment vehicle (CCIV) security.

Note: See Sections 5, 5A and 5B of ASIC Corporations \(Application Form Requirements\) Instrument 2017/241.

RG 168.15 The application form must contain the clients name, date of birth and address: see reg 7.9.74(1).

RG 168.16 The address should be the client's address, and not the address of an Australian financial services (AFS) licensee or authorised representative advising the applicant, so that the applicant can be identified.

Note: The AFS licensee or authorised representative's address can be included in the application form for correspondence purposes. However, it is preferable that correspondence is also sent to the client's own address.

DRAFT

When a client must receive a PDS

- RG 168.17 A PDS must generally be given to a client at or before the time the product issuer or seller makes:
- (a) a recommendation to buy a financial product;
 - (b) an offer to issue or arrange the issue of a financial product; or
 - (c) an offer to sell a financial product, if that sale requires disclosure: see s1012A, 1012B and 1012C.
- RG 168.18 For most superannuation products, the superannuation trustee must publish a PDS on the fund website no later than 20 days after the statement is first given to a person in relation to a recommendation, issue, or sale of a product. The PDS must be readily accessible on the website: see s1017DA(1)(a) and reg 7.9.07ZB(3)–(4).

Situations when a PDS may be provided later

Time critical situations

- RG 168.19 A PDS for certain financial products may be provided later in ‘time critical’ circumstances (e.g. if a client expressly instructs that they be issued a financial product immediately), if conditions are met. These conditions include requirements for certain clear, concise, and effective verbal communications: see notional s1012G(2), (3)(a)–(b) and (4), as inserted by reg 7.9.15H.
- RG 168.20 However, a client must be given a PDS in these circumstances as soon as reasonably practicable and, in any event:
- (a) no later than five business days after they were issued or sold the product; or
 - (b) when the client receives confirmation they have acquired the product, or this confirmation is available to them: see notional s1012G(3)(c).

Certain superannuation products

- RG 168.21 A superannuation trustee may be able to give a PDS up to three months after certain superannuation products are issued to a member: see s1012F, reg 7.9.04(2)(a) and notional s1012B(4A)–(4B), as inserted by Sch 10A, cl 17.1.
- RG 168.22 These superannuation products are:
- (a) superannuation interests in a non-public offer fund (subject to exceptions);
 - (b) pensions issued by a pension-only superannuation fund;

- (c) superannuation interests in a successor fund; and
- (d) superannuation interests issued because of complying with a commutation authority: see reg 7.9.04(1).

Exceptions to supplying a PDS

- RG 168.23 A PDS does not have to be given later if the product issuer or seller:
- (a) has no address for the client; or
 - (b) is reasonably satisfied that the address they have is incorrect and they have taken reasonable steps to locate the client but have been unsuccessful: see notional s1012D(9L), as inserted by reg 7.9.07F.

When no PDS is needed

Client has already received the PDS or equivalent disclosures

- RG 168.24 A PDS does not need to be given if there are reasonable grounds to believe that a client has received or had access to all the information that the PDS would have been required to contain: see s1012D(1)–(2).
- RG 168.25 Providing the client with a list of documents that contain the PDS information would be a way to show reasonable grounds for a belief that the client had access to all information the PDS would need to contain.
- RG 168.26 If accessing the information would be costly, inconvenient or require material involvement by a third party, it may be difficult for us to accept that there were reasonable grounds for believing that the client had access to the information.

Client is not in Australia

- RG 168.27 In a recommendation, issue or sale situation, a PDS does not have to be given to a client who is not in Australia: see notional s1012D(8A), as inserted by reg 7.9.07FB.

Certain product offers

- RG 168.28 Certain offers of financial products do not require a PDS. These include:
- (a) offers to current product holders;
 - (b) offers of certain products for no consideration;
 - (c) offers that are not made in the course of a business of issuing financial products;

- (d) offers of securities to which Div 2 of Pt 6D.2 applies;
- (e) offers of debentures, stocks or bonds by a government;
- (f) certain offers under a takeover bid;
- (g) small scale offers of managed investment products;
- (h) offers of bundled contracts of insurance; and
- (i) offers of basic deposit products and related products where the client has been informed of certain costs, payment and other information and asked if they would like further information: see s1010A, 1010B and 1012D (including as modified by regs 7.9.07D and 7.9.07FA).

RG 168.29 A PDS also does not need to be given if an offer to issue or sell a financial product is declined and does not occur: see notional s1012D(9J)–(9K), as inserted by reg 7.9.07E.

Self-managed superannuation funds

RG 168.30 A PDS does not have to be given to a client if:

- (a) the financial product is an interest in a self-managed superannuation fund (SMSF); and
- (b) there are reasonable grounds to believe that a person joining the SMSF has received or has (and knows they have) access to all the information that the PDS would be required to contain: see s1012D(2A).

RG 168.31 The fact that each member of an SMSF must be either a trustee or a director of the SMSF (if the trustee is a body corporate) does not, in itself, show reasonable grounds to believe that a prospective member has, or has access to, all the information required.

RG 168.32 Product issuers or sellers, as well as any financial adviser, should actively consider whether each prospective member has received, or have (and know they have) access to, all the information that the PDS would need to contain.

Retirement savings accounts

RG 168.33 A PDS for a retirement savings account (RSA) does not need to be given if the issue or sale of an RSA is taking place in a takeover or merger situation: see notional s1012D(9C), as inserted by Sch 10A, cl 2.1 to the Corporations Regulations.

Group life insurance products

RG 168.34 When the superannuation trustee obtains a group insurance policy to benefit members of the fund, under s1012H, the insurer does not have to give a PDS for the insurance product to each fund member. This is because the insurer issues the policy to the trustee and not the members. However, the trustee must ensure that details about the insurance is included in the PDS for the superannuation product: see Sch 10D, cl 10.

- RG 168.35 This situation is different to the obligation to confirm a transaction. We consider that the acceptance of an insurance election is a transaction that must be confirmed under s1017F.

Interim contracts of insurance

- RG 168.36 A PDS does not need to be given if the financial product in a recommendation or issue situation is an interim contract of insurance (as defined in s11(2) of the Insurance Contracts Act 1984 (Insurance Contracts Act)): see s1012D(9).

General insurance products

- RG 168.37 A PDS does not need to be given in relation to an offer to issue, or arrange the issue of, a general insurance product that is made during or because of a phone call with the client where a quote was also given if:
- (a) the phone call is solicited contact; and
 - (b) before the offer was made, the client was informed in a clear, concise, and effective manner:
 - (i) of any exclusions and limitations that apply to the product and that their details can be found in the PDS;
 - (ii) that the level of insurance cover under the product may be different to other general insurance products; and
 - (c) the client was asked if they would like a PDS, but did not have their decision influenced in this regard: see s1012GA(1).
- RG 168.38 If a client requests the PDS during the phone call, it must be given to the client as soon as practicable after the time the offer is made: see s1012GA(2)(a).
- RG 168.39 A PDS also does not need to be given when a client's general insurance product is renewed, if the client is given a Supplementary PDS that contains any additional information required in a PDS (but that was not in the original PDS the client received when acquiring that product): see notional s1014EA, as inserted by reg 7.9.07FC.

C Tailored PDS requirements

Key points

The Corporations Act allows for the use of tailored PDSs by permitting:

- Short-Form PDSs, if certain conditions are met;
- shorter PDSs that must be used for standard margin-lending facilities, superannuation products, simple managed investment schemes and simple sub-fund products (unless relief applies);
- adjusted shorter PDS equivalent disclosures that we consider can be used for non-standard margin-lending facilities;
- modified PDSs for general insurance products; and
- transaction-specific PDSs for continuously quoted securities.

Certain information may be ‘incorporated by reference’ in a PDS, which reduces the length of the document.

A Supplementary PDS can also be used to update information or to correct misleading or deceptive statements or omissions in the original PDS.

Short-Form PDS regime

Products eligible for a Short-Form PDS

- RG 168.40 A Short-Form PDS may be given for all financial products, other than:
- (a) general insurance products;
 - (b) managed investment products in relation to an Australian passport fund;
 - (c) securities in an Australian passport fund that is a sub-fund of a retail CCIV; or
 - (d) a foreign passport fund product: see notional s1017H(4), as inserted by Sch 10BA to the Corporations Regulations.

- RG 168.41 A Short-Form PDS cannot be given to a person if they have requested a full PDS: see notional s1017H(2), as inserted by Sch 10BA.

Content requirements for a Short-Form PDS

- RG 168.42 In general, a Short-Form PDS summarises the key information in a PDS. This includes information about the product issuer, benefits, risks, costs, dispute resolution and cooling off. There are also additional Short-Form PDS content requirements for superannuation products, managed investment products and retail CCIV securities: see notional s1017I, as inserted by Sch 10BA to the Corporations Regulations.

DRAFT

Shorter PDS regime

Products eligible for shorter PDSs

- RG 168.43 The Corporations Regulations impose a shorter PDS regime for:
- (a) standard margin lending facilities (Sch 10C);
 - (b) superannuation products (other than products described in reg 7.9.11K(2)) (Sch 10D);
 - (c) simple managed investment schemes (other than schemes described in reg 7.9.11S(2)–(4)) (Sch 10E); and
 - (d) simple sub-fund products (other than products described in reg 7.9.11ZA(2)–(4)) (Sch 10F).
- RG 168.44 ASIC has given relief so that superannuation platforms, multifunds and hedge funds may elect to be exempt from the shorter PDS regime until 1 October 2027: see s5 of ASIC Corporations \(Shorter PDS and Delivery of Accessible Financial Products Disclosure by Platform Operators and Superannuation Trustees\) Instrument 2022/497.

Content requirements for shorter PDSs

- RG 168.45 The shorter PDS regime:
- (a) removes the PDS content requirements for financial products in s1013D(1);
 - (b) substitutes new PDS content requirements, which are more prescriptive and product-specific; and
 - (c) prescribes a maximum page limit for a PDS.
- RG 168.46 For a summary of these requirements, see Appendix 3.

PDS regime for non-standard margin lending facilities

Disclosures for a non-standard margin lending PDS

- RG 168.47 We consider that the provider of a non-standard margin-lending facility can meet their obligations in s1013D and Pt 7.9 more generally by disclosing equivalent information to what would be disclosed for a standard margin lending facility under the shorter PDS regime—to the extent the information is relevant—and making additional disclosures.

Note: See Appendix 3 for a summary of the shorter PDS requirements.

DRAFT

Additional disclosures for non-standard margin-lending facility PDSs

- RG 168.48 Examples of additional disclosures, which should be prominently displayed in the PDS, include:
- (a) a statement of how the facility differs from a standard margin lending facility;
 - (b) an explanation of who owns the investment(s)—covering the transfer of securities from the client to the provider and the client’s right to repurchase equivalent marketable securities;
 - (c) an explanation of any rights that the client has under the facility (e.g. the right to repurchase the transferred securities or the right to terminate the facility);
 - (d) an explanation of what the issuer will or may do with the transferred securities, including any arrangements that could increase or decrease the risk to the client that the issuer will be unable to fulfil a request to repurchase the securities;
 - (e) an explanation of the risks associated with the client transferring title to their marketable securities, including risks associated with party insolvency and that the client may need to provide extra funds (e.g. to meet any margin calls relating to the securities);
 - (f) a clear statement of the possible circumstances in which the issuer might not fulfil a request to return equivalent securities;
 - (g) an explanation of the retail client’s exposure to counterparty risk (if relevant)—the PDS should also provide sufficient explanation to allow the client to evaluate the quality of any hedging engaged in by the issuer;
 - (h) an explanation that the risks the client may be exposed to are greater than expected loss—for example, if the value of the transferred securities exceeds the value of the transferred property (i.e. the cash advanced), which should include:
 - (i) a clear warning to the client of their responsibility to monitor the margin in both a rising and falling market; and
 - (ii) a clear statement of the client’s right to request a return of some, or all, of the transferred securities or payment of an additional amount of transferred property; and
 - (i) an explanation of the tax consequences of the transaction and a warning that the client should seek tax advice before entering into the transaction.
- RG 168.49 Where relevant, PDSs for non-standard margin lending facilities should also draw clients’ attention to other key features or risks that would influence a decision to purchase the product.

DRAFT

- RG 168.50 For example, if the legal structure of the transaction is based on a type of securities lending or repurchase agreement, the key elements to this agreement should be disclosed in the PDS in a clear, concise and effective manner.

PDS regime for general insurance products

Content requirements for a general insurance PDS

- RG 168.51 The Corporations Regulations provide for a modified PDS regime for general insurance products by:
- removing certain PDS content requirements, including where the information is disclosed by the product issuer in another document;
 - specifying how a product issuer should disclose significant characteristics or features of a general insurance product; and
 - removing the requirement for some significant benefits of general insurance products to be stated in dollar terms.
- RG 168.52 Table 1 outlines the content requirements for a general insurance PDS.

Table 1: Content requirements that apply or do not apply for a general insurance product PDS

Content requirements	Details to include
Requirements that apply to a general insurance PDS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The PDS must include the following information to satisfy the requirement in s1013D(1)(f) to disclose information about any other significant characteristics or features of the general insurance product: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> the terms and conditions of the policy document (within the meaning of the Insurance Contracts Act); and any information that the product issuer would have to provide to the person before the contract of insurance has been entered into: see reg 7.9.15E and s35(2) and s37 of the Insurance Contracts Act. Some significant benefits must be stated in dollar terms but can only be determined after the PDS has been prepared (e.g. because the product issuer must assess the risk of the applicant). In these situations: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> the information can be stated in the PDS either as a range of amount in dollars, as a percentage or as a description (see regs 7.9.15C(4) and (5)); and the applicant must also be given a document stating the dollar amount of the cost or benefit within five business days of the product being issued. Note: ASIC Corporations (Disclosure in Dollars) Instrument 2016/767 gives conditional relief from the obligation to disclose dollar amounts. See RG 182 for further information.

Content requirements	Details to include
Requirements that do not apply to a general insurance PDS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The PDS does not need to include the following information from s1013D: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – any significant risks associated with holding the product; – amounts deducted from a common fund; – commissions or other similar payments that might impact on returns; – any significant taxation implications of financial products of that kind; – how the client can access any other information about the financial product that is available; and – the extent to which labour standards or environmental, social or ethical considerations are taken into account in making the investment decision: see reg 7.9.15D.

Bundled insurance products

- RG 168.53 If there is more than one insurer for a bundled insurance product, each insurer is responsible to the bundled insurance product holder for some or all of the risks or obligations covered by the product. All insurers will therefore be joint issuers of the product under s1013A and are responsible for all the statements made in the PDS: see s764A(1A).

Transaction-specific PDSs

Products eligible for a transaction-specific PDS

- RG 168.54 A product issuer that issues continuously quoted securities, can issue a PDS with specific, limited content ('transaction-specific PDS').
- RG 168.55 Transaction-specific disclosures are permitted for continuously quoted securities because the market should generally have all the information to reach an informed view about the securities, based on previous disclosures the issuer has made to the market about its activities, financial standing and prospects (e.g. in their annual financial reports).
- RG 168.56 A transaction-specific PDS cannot be issued for options over continuously quoted securities—unless the options are also continuously quoted securities themselves or if ASIC has provided relief: see RG 168.59.
- RG 168.57 A suspension from quotation, or a trading halt, of continuously quoted securities does not prevent a product issuer from using a transaction-specific PDS. If the listing rules continue to apply to continuously quoted securities, then the securities may still qualify for a transaction-specific PDS.

Disclosure requirements for a transaction-specific PDS

RG 168.58 Table 2 outlines the disclosure requirements for a transaction-specific PDS.

Table 2: Disclosure requirements for a transaction-specific PDS

Statement content	Details to include
Content and presentation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> A transaction-specific PDS can omit certain information under s1013D, 1013E and 1013F, where that information is already disclosed in the product issuer's: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> most recent annual financial report or sustainability report lodged with ASIC; half-year financial report lodged with ASIC after lodgment of the annual financial report and before the date of the PDS; or any continuous disclosure notices given by the issuer after the most recent annual financial report lodged with ASIC and before the date of the PDS: see s1013FA(2) and (2)(aa). All the information included in a PDS must be worded and presented in a clear, concise and effective manner: see s1013C(3)
Right to obtain documents	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> A transaction-specific PDS must: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> inform clients of their right to obtain a copy, or must be accompanied by a copy, of the annual financial report, sustainability report, half-year financial report or continuous disclosure notice(s) that contain the omitted information; and if informing clients of their right to obtain a copy—include a statement that the product issuer will give a copy of the document free of charge during the application period for the PDS: see s1013FA(2). A transaction-specific PDS should include a statement that the product issuer, as a disclosing entity, is subject to regular reporting and disclosure obligations, and that copies of lodged documents can be obtained or inspected at an ASIC office: see s1013I.
Statement identifying each document	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> A transaction-specific PDS should identify each document that is available. The PDS does not need to summarise each document—it is enough if the PDS describes the title and its content.
Responding to document requests	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Product issuers should supply the documents requested within a reasonable time of receiving the request to ensure the client has enough time to consider the material before deciding to invest.

Our relief powers

RG 168.59 We may grant relief to allow a product issuer to use a transaction-specific PDS if the relief will not have a materially adverse effect on the level of information available to the market. For example, we have allowed issuers to use a transaction-specific PDS:

- if the issuer is also the beneficiary of certain technical accounting relief that we have given (see ASIC Corporations \(Disregarding Technical Relief\) Instrument 2016/73); and
- for options over continuously quoted securities, and convertible securities that are not continuously quoted securities, if the issuer can demonstrate that clients have been able to obtain sufficient information by other means to make an informed decision about the nature and risks of those options or convertible securities.

- RG 168.60 A transaction-specific PDS cannot generally be issued if we have given the issuer relief from the following disclosure provisions in the previous 12 months:
- (a) disclosing entity provisions under s741(1);
 - (b) exemptions from the disclosing entity provisions under s111AS, 111AT or 111AV; or
 - (c) exemptions from the financial reporting, sustainability reporting and audit requirements under s340 or 341: see paragraph (b) of the definition of ‘continuously quoted securities’ in s9.

- RG 168.61 We can also exclude a product issuer from using a transaction-specific PDS if we are satisfied that, in the previous 12 months, the issuer has not complied with any or all of its disclosure obligations to:
- (a) meet the financial and sustainability reporting requirements under Ch 2M;
 - (b) provide continuous disclosure (s674 and 675);
 - (c) correct a defective issuer’s notice (s1012DAA(10) and 1012DA(9));
 - (d) ensure there are no false or misleading statements in an issuer’s notice required by s1012DAA(2) or 1012DA(5) (s1308);
 - (e) meet the PDS disclosure conditions (s1016E); or
 - (f) ensure it does not prepare defective disclosure documents (ss1021D, 1021E and 1021J): see s1013FA(3)).

Note: For example, we may prevent an issuer from using a transaction-specific PDS if the entity’s continuously quoted securities are suspended from quotation and we have concerns that the entity has not complied with its continuous disclosure obligations.

- RG 168.62 Before exercising our power to exclude a product issuer from using a transaction-specific PDS, we will generally offer them an opportunity to make submissions about whether the determination should be made. We will not usually regard it as a sufficient argument against making a determination that the breach of the relevant obligation has since been rectified in some way.

- RG 168.63 Each determination must be published in the ASIC Gazette: see s1013FA(4). We will also send the determination to the operator of the market on which the issuer is listed to ensure they are aware of the determination for supervision purposes and for market transparency.

DRAFT

Incorporation by reference

- RG 168.64 PDSs for all financial products can incorporate information by reference, although there are limitations on this ability in relation to shorter PDSs (see Appendix 3) and Short-Form PDS regimes. This means that the PDS can incorporate information by referring to another document that has the information: see reg 7.9.15DA.
- RG 168.65 Incorporated information must be in writing and publicly available, and the PDS must:
- (a) refer to the information;
 - (b) provide sufficient details about the information to enable a person to:
 - (i) identify, by a unique identifier, the document or part of the document that contains the information;
 - (ii) locate the information; and
 - (iii) decide whether or not to read, or obtain a copy of, the information; and
 - (c) state that a copy may be obtained from the issuer of the PDS, on request, at no charge, as soon as practicable: see reg 7.9.15DA(1).
- RG 168.66 Any information that is incorporated by reference into a PDS is taken to be included in that PDS and subject to all provisions relating to a PDS: see reg 7.9.15DA(3). This means that the incorporated information must be clear, concise and effective and must not be misleading or deceptive.
- RG 168.67 The following information must be included in a PDS and cannot be incorporated by reference:
- (a) a description, in summary, of the key features of the product (including its significant benefits and significant characteristics);
 - (b) a description, in summary, of the key risks of the product;
 - (c) the name and contact details of the issuer of the product (and, if relevant, the seller of the product);
 - (d) information about the dispute resolution system that covers client complaints and how to access it;
 - (e) information about any cooling-off regime;
 - (f) the fees and costs with worked examples;
 - (g) cost of product information;
 - (h) an explanation of adviser remuneration with worked examples; and
 - (i) the Consumer Advisory Warning: see reg 7.9.15DA(4) (as modified by s6(2)(a) of ASIC Corporations \(Disclosure of Fees and Costs\) Instrument 2019/1070) and notional Sch 10, as inserted by ASIC Instrument 2019/1070.

Note: Product cost information is not required in a PDS for a defined benefit fund, or a PDS that relates to only one product or investment option, if an Example of Annual Fees and Costs has been included for the product/option: see cl 220A, notional Sch 10.

DRAFT

Supplementary PDSs

- RG 168.68 Supplementary PDSs or Supplementary Short-Form PDSs (collectively ‘Supplementary PDSs’) are documents by which a product issuer can update information, and correct misleading or deceptive statements or omissions contained in the original document: see s1014A. However, in some cases, issuing a new PDS may be better than issuing a Supplementary PDS to correct a misleading or deceptive statement.
- RG 168.69 Supplementary PDSs cannot be used for shorter PDSs for superannuation products, simple managed investment schemes and simple sub-fund products. If a product issuer needs to update information in the shorter PDS, or a misleading or deceptive statement or omission needs correcting, they must issue a new shorter PDS: see reg 7.9.11M, 7.9.11U and 7.9.11ZC.

DRAFT

D General disclosure concerns

Key points

Statements about future matters, past performance and opinion, the overall impression of a PDS, illustrations or examples, disclaimers and comparisons are particular disclosure considerations for a PDS.

If a product issuer becomes aware that a PDS has become defective, they must generally take remedial action.

When we have concerns about a PDS, we may issue a stop order.

What are some disclosure considerations for a PDS

Statements about future matters

- RG 168.70 If a product issuer does not have reasonable grounds for making a statement about any future matter, the statement is more likely to be misleading or deceptive and the PDS may be defective: see the definition of ‘defective’ in s1021B(1) and s1021E. For example, a statement about prospective financial information based on hypothetical assumptions is unlikely to be based on reasonable grounds.

Note: For further guidance on disclosure of prospective financial information, see RG 170.

Statements about past performance

- RG 168.71 Misleading or deceptive representations may arise from past performance information depending on:
- (a) whether the past performance information is current;
 - (b) the length of time a product or investment strategy has existed or the investment period selected;
 - (c) the periods for which past performance information is shown (e.g. different sub-periods in the life of any past performance information may produce entirely different past performance figures);
 - (d) whether the past performance information is shown in accordance with any industry standards;
 - (e) any suggestion of a link between past performance and future prospects;
 - (f) whether hypothetical or reconstructed past performance figures are used;

DRAFT

- (g) changes in the state of the market such that returns in the short to medium term are likely to be significantly less than the past performance being quoted; and
- (h) changes in the method or mechanism by which the investment strategy is implemented (e.g. appointment of a new investment manager).

RG 168.72 A statement about past performance should be accompanied by a prominent warning that past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance or the PDS may be defective: see s1021E.

Statements of opinion

RG 168.73 All statements made within a PDS should have a reasonable basis or the PDS may be defective: see s1021E. For example:

- (a) ensuring that an opinion about a future matter is based on reasonable grounds; and
- (b) ensuring that if an opinion conveys that there is a basis for that opinion, it is honestly held, and when expressed as the opinion of an expert, that it is honestly held on rational grounds involving the application of the relevant expertise.

RG 168.74 A statement of opinion may become misleading or deceptive if it continues to be published when the maker no longer holds the opinion or the grounds on which it was made have substantially changed.

RG 168.75 A PDS may only include a statement made by a person, or information based on a statement made by a person, if that person has consented to its inclusion in the PDS: see s1013K.

Overall impression of PDS

RG 168.76 Determining the overall impression conveyed by a PDS will involve:

- (a) identifying the relevant class of consumers to whom the offer was made; and
- (b) considering the range of people within that class.

RG 168.77 A PDS should be worded and presented in a clear, concise and effective manner: see s1013C(3).

DRAFT

Illustrations or examples

RG 168.78 Where illustrations or examples are used in a PDS, they should be provided on a consistent basis and be accompanied by a clear explanation of:

- (a) the facts and assumptions on which they are based (e.g. an illustration of the effect of fees on the actual returns of an investment should indicate what fees are included in any calculation); and
- (b) their purpose (e.g. that an illustration of the effect of fees on returns is not a forecast of the end benefit payable).

This is consistent with the requirement for information in a PDS to be worded and presented in a clear, concise and effective manner: see s1013C(3).

Disclaimers

RG 168.79 A disclaimer about a statement in a PDS will not counterbalance the potentially misleading effect of reading the statement in isolation if the disclaimer is not prominent. Consistent with the requirement for PDSs to include information that clients reasonably require to decide whether to acquire the product, a disclaimer should be able to be seen and understood by those who otherwise might be misled: see s1013D(1).

Ambiguous statements

RG 168.80 Ambiguous statements in a PDS may be misleading or deceptive if one or more of the reasonably possible meanings is misleading or deceptive, and the PDS may be defective: see s1021E.

Comparisons

RG 168.81 When comparing the performance of a product to a benchmark or a competitor in a PDS, this should be done carefully or the PDS may be defective: see s1021E. For example, comparing a financial product against a benchmark assuming that returns are reinvested may be misleading or deceptive if, in fact, it is not possible to reinvest returns. Also, comparing returns for different investment strategies may be misleading or deceptive if the returns for each investment strategy are not calculated and shown consistently, or there is no explanation of the basis on which returns information is provided.

When a product issuer must take remedial action

RG 168.82 If a product issuer becomes aware that a PDS has become defective, they must generally take remedial action: see s1016E.

- RG 168.83 Remedial action can include:
- (a) refunding any money received;
 - (b) giving the applicant a Supplementary PDS or new PDS and one month to withdraw their application and receive a refund; or
 - (c) giving the applicant a Supplementary PDS or new PDS and one month to return the product and receive a refund.
- RG 168.84 If a client has applied for a product on the basis of an out-of-date or otherwise defective PDS, they are entitled to return the product and obtain a refund: see s1016F and 1241Y.
- RG 168.85 A client can only exercise this right within one month of the date of issue of the product.

When we may issue a stop order for a PDS

- RG 168.86 We may issue a stop order where we believe any of the following situations exist:
- (a) the PDS is ‘defective’—that is:
 - (i) the PDS contains a misleading or deceptive statement; or
 - (ii) the PDS omits information required to be provided under legislation;
 - (b) the PDS does not comply with the requirement that it be worded and presented in a clear, concise and effective manner; or
 - (c) a new circumstance has arisen since the PDS was lodged (if applicable).
- RG 168.87 However, if delay could be prejudicial to the public interest, we may impose an interim stop order without consulting the issuer, pending resolution of our concerns at a hearing.

Note: Our approach to issuing stop orders during the exposure period under Ch 6D is set out in Regulatory Guide 254 Offering securities under a disclosure document (RG 254). PDSs that are not required to be lodged, and to which no exposure period applies, may be subject to a stop order at any time.

- RG 168.88 When determining the scope or terms of a stop order, we will consider factors such as the nature of the financial product and the potential impact of the order on the interests of clients (e.g. the impact on renewals for general insurance).
- RG 168.89 We may also consider taking enforcement action for a particular PDS. For guidance on our approach to enforcement, see Information Sheet 151 ASIC’s approach to enforcement (INFO 151).

E Good Disclosure Principles

Key points

We have developed our Good Disclosure Principles to help product issuers prepare a PDS—however, the principles will also be useful when preparing other disclosure documents and promotional publications given to retail clients.

The principles are:

- Disclosure should be timely;
- Disclosure should be relevant and complete;
- Disclosure should promote product understanding;
- Disclosure should promote product comparison;
- Disclosure should highlight important information; and
- Disclosure should have regard to clients' needs.

Principle 1: Disclosure should be timely

- RG 168.90 A PDS should generally be provided to a retail client before that client applies for a financial product: see s1016A.
- RG 168.91 However, there are situations where a PDS may be provided to the client later: see RG 168.19–RG 168.22.
- RG 168.92 Product issuers should establish distribution procedures that maximise the time that a client has to read a PDS before making an application.
- RG 168.93 A PDS must be up to date at the time it is given: see s1012J. A product issuer should regularly review its PDS to make sure the information in it is current. Where a client applies to acquire a product based on an out-of-date PDS, they may be entitled to a refund under s1016E.

Note: We have granted limited relief from the requirement to update a PDS where the new information does not include any materially adverse information and where it is available to clients free of charge by some other means (e.g. through a website): see ASIC Corporations \(Updated Product Disclosure Statements\) Instrument 2016/1055.

DRAFT

Principle 2: Disclosure should be relevant and complete

RG 168.94 The content requirements for a PDS set out broadly what categories of information will be relevant: see s1013D. Information in a PDS should be complete and relevant to a client who is deciding whether to acquire the financial product.

Note: For information about content requirements for PDSs, see RG 168.8–RG 168.13, Section C and the Appendices.

RG 168.95 When determining what information will be relevant to a client's decision to acquire a product, the product issuer should consider:

- (a) the information needs of the class of consumers to whom the PDS is directed;
- (b) the contractual or other arrangements under which the client holds a particular product;
- (c) any relevant regulatory or other obligations applicable to the product (e.g. taxation);
- (d) the most important information that clients need, including, but not limited to, risk disclosure;
- (e) ensuring that all relevant information is presented together or is cross-referenced effectively; and
- (f) ensuring that the information that makes up the PDS is clearly identified and linked, where disclosure is contained in more than one document (e.g. where information has been incorporated from other documents).

RG 168.96 Disclosure that is not complete may constitute a misleading or deceptive statement or breach the PDS content requirements. ASIC may take regulatory action for a defective PDS in these circumstances: see s1020E and 1021E.

Principle 3: Disclosure should promote product understanding

RG 168.97 Information in a PDS should help to promote a client's understanding of the financial product. This will help product issuers comply with their obligation for PDSs to be presented in a clear, concise and effective manner: see s1013C(3).

RG 168.98 We may issue a stop order for a PDS that is not clear, concise and effective: see s1020E(1)(a)(ia).

DRAFT

Use a range of communication tools

- RG 168.99 When preparing a PDS, product issuers should consider using communication tools (e.g. text, tables, diagrams and graphs) that promote product understanding and comparability. Navigational aids, such as tables of contents and clear signposting, can help clients to find information in the PDS more effectively. Product issuers should not use communication tools in such a way that they are likely to confuse clients.

Avoid jargon

- RG 168.100 Where possible, product issuers should try to avoid using industry and legal jargon in a PDS. If this cannot be avoided, then they should explain its meaning—for example, by including a glossary of technical terms. Product issuers should use plain language and, if necessary, illustrate explanations by providing simple examples.

Consider the complexity of the product

- RG 168.101 Product issuers may need to provide a greater level of disclosure if the product is not generally understood by clients (e.g. if it is new or complex): see s1013F(2). For example, if a product issuer is offering multiple or ‘bundled’ financial products in a single PDS, the issuer may need to highlight this feature, so that clients are not misled or confused by any material in the PDS.
- RG 168.102 The level of risk disclosure in a PDS will vary from product to product. In general, complex products that are not well understood need sufficient explanation of their risks to ensure clients understand how the products work. Industry participants should not assume that clients understand the risks involved in complex product offerings.
- RG 168.103 In some limited circumstances, product issuers may need to consider simplifying the information about a complex product and the way it is presented (e.g. by using graphs, tables or figures) to help clients understand the product.

Minimise risks from including extraneous information

- RG 168.104 If product issuers want to include extraneous material in a PDS, they should consider the overriding requirement that the information must be drafted and presented clearly, concisely and effectively: see s1013C(3).
- RG 168.105 Extraneous material includes:
- (a) advertising or promotional material by the product issuer or by a third party (e.g. advertising about other products); or
 - (b) immaterial benefits associated with acquiring the product.

- RG 168.106 Extraneous material should not redirect clients away from important information or distract them from key features of the disclosure.
- RG 168.107 If a product issuer includes extraneous material in a PDS, there are risks that:
- (a) a client may not read this information, or may disregard or not understand the importance of it; and
 - (b) a client might otherwise be misled or deceived.
- RG 168.108 To diminish these risks, product issuers should consider methods to ensure that extraneous material in a PDS is clearly distinguishable from relevant information, and no more prominent.

Clearly disclose fees, charges, and returns

- RG 168.109 Information about fees, charges and investment returns is a key consideration for clients when making decisions about financial products.
- RG 168.110 PDSs must meet certain fees and costs disclosure requirements if they are for:
- (a) superannuation products (other than SMSFs, risk-only superannuation products, annuities (except market-linked annuities), non-investment or accumulation life insurance policies offered through super, and defined benefit superannuation pensions);
 - (b) managed investment products;
 - (c) foreign passport fund products; and
 - (d) securities in a CCIV: see reg 7.9.16J–7.9.16N (as modified by s6(2)(b)–(c) of ASIC Instrument 2019/1070) and notional Sch 10, as inserted by ASIC Instrument 2019/1070).
- RG 168.111 Simplified versions of these requirements must be used in shorter PDSs: see Appendix 3.

Note: For more information about the legislative framework for how fees and costs should be disclosed in PDSs, see Regulatory Guide 97 Disclosing fees and costs in PDSs and periodic statements (RG 97).

Principle 4: Disclosure should promote product comparison

- RG 168.112 Information in a PDS should make it easier for clients to compare between:
- (a) two or more competing financial products; and
 - (b) options that may be available to them under the terms of a particular financial product. For example, where a client has the option to pay fees in two ways, a comparison might be given to show the relative charges made for each option across different years (e.g. at one, three, five and 10 years).

DRAFT

RG 168.113 We consider that this will help product issuers meet their obligation to provide information that might reasonably be expected to have a material influence on the decision of the client whether to acquire the product: see s1013E.

Note: This is consistent with the broad objective of financial product point of sale disclosure obligations, which include providing the ability for clients to compare a range of products: see paragraph 14.28 of the Explanatory Memorandum to the Financial Services Reform Bill 2001.

RG 168.114 As noted in RG 168.110, some financial products must meet certain fees and costs disclosure requirements. These requirements prescribe a consistent and transparent approach to fees and costs in PDSs and periodic statements to enable clients to compare products and understand the fees and costs they are charged.

RG 168.115 Consistent with the objective for clients to be able to compare a range of products, PDSs for other financial products should highlight information to help clients understand and compare product options and different products, including:

- (a) fees:
 - (i) what the fees and costs are;
 - (ii) who the fees are paid to;
 - (iii) what the fees are for;
 - (iv) how and when the fees are paid; and
 - (v) how the fees affect returns;
- (b) whether fees are variable and, if so, how and when they vary, including through negotiation or the impact of rebates or discounts (e.g. group life rebates);
- (c) what are the typical and material factors that may affect returns, including risks; and
- (d) how returns are calculated and whether they are shown consistently.

RG 168.116 Generally, information in a PDS about product returns should be calculated consistently, wherever possible. For example, if historical returns are disclosed for different investment strategies over a one, three, and five-year period, then, for each investment strategy, clients should be able to understand whether or not the returns are shown on a consistent basis for each period.

Principle 5: Disclosure should highlight important information

RG 168.117 A PDS should highlight important information that a client needs to decide whether to buy a financial product. This will help product issuers comply with their obligations for PDSs to disclose:

- (a) information that is prescribed in a clear, concise and effective manner (s1013C(3));

DRAFT

- (b) information about significant product characteristics, benefits and risks that a person would reasonably require for the purpose of making a decision (s1013D(1)(b),(c) and (f)); and
- (c) information that might reasonably be expected to have a material influence on a client decision whether to acquire the product (s1013E).

RG 168.118 When determining whether a client's attention is likely to be drawn to the information they most need, product issuers should consider:

- (a) the size of the typeface;
- (b) the use of colour and graphics;
- (c) the layout and order in which information is presented;
- (d) the boldness of information; and
- (e) how the information displays in hard copy compared to digitally, and across a variety of different technology types (see RG 221).

RG 168.119 This list of options is not exhaustive and product issuers should also consider any other relevant information they are aware of.

RG 168.120 To minimise the risk that a PDS is misleading or deceptive because of the way it is presented, product issuers should consider giving prominence to:

- (a) key information about the product in a summary at the front of the PDS;

Note: In the case of PDSs for capital protected products, the PDS should disclose the way in which capital protection is provided, as well as the extent of, and conditions to, the capital protection.

- (b) 'warnings' associated with particular information—for example:
 - (i) if past performance is shown, the PDS should include a warning that this information should not be relied on as indicative of future performance (see RG 168.71–RG 168.72); and
 - (ii) if prospective financial information is included, it should be accompanied by prominent disclosure about underlying assumptions, limits and risks (see RG 170);
- (c) information about significant product features not usually associated with a particular product of that type (e.g. exclusions in the case of risk insurance claims for a product);
- (d) information about significant product features that, while not unusual, may lead to a large financial impact for a client—for example, costs for early termination or sale of an investment-based financial product (break costs) and the factors that may affect how those costs are calculated;
- (e) information about how product issuers deal with client money, if relevant, including:
 - (i) when the issuer makes withdrawals from client money; and

- (ii) the nature of the counterparty risk for client money used for derivatives (see Regulatory Guide 212 Client money relating to dealing in OTC derivatives (RG 212));
- (f) other significant details (e.g. counterparty risk information, if applicable).

Note: In assessing the adequacy of counterparty risk information, product issuers should consider how financial position and performance information is disclosed in the PDS, the product issuer's risk management and compliance systems, criteria used to choose hedging counterparties and the identity of hedging counterparties (if only a very small number exists).

RG 168.121 Where a PDS is made up of several documents, the product issuer should help clients by highlighting the information most relevant to their decision and how this is linked to relevant information in other documents.

Principle 6: Disclosure should have regard to clients' needs

RG 168.122 Product issuers should have regard to clients' information and communication needs when preparing a PDS, by:

- (a) appropriately tailoring the PDS content to its targeted class of consumers;
- (b) basing the PDS on a consumer-tested format;
- (c) applying client feedback (including complaints) from past or current point-of-sale offer documents to the PDS; and
- (d) improving the quality of the disclosure in the PDS to promote product understanding by clients (see also Good Disclosure Principle 4).

RG 168.123 We consider this will help product issuers to comply with their obligations to:

- (a) ensure information in the PDS is worded and presented in a clear, concise and effective manner (s1013C(3));
- (b) disclose any information that might reasonably be expected to have a material influence on the decision of a reasonable client to acquire the product (s1013E); and
- (c) avoid including a misleading or deceptive statement in the PDS (s1021E).

Client feedback and complaints

RG 168.124 Complaints are an important source of information about client problems with, or misunderstandings caused by, the information in a PDS.

RG 168.125 An ongoing review of a PDS (e.g. to determine if supplementary information is needed) should consider any client feedback and complaints about the PDS and other disclosure documents. Complaints about a product itself can also be reviewed for insight into the quality or effectiveness of its PDS.

F Lodgement and notification

Key points

For certain managed investment products and CCIV securities, product issuers must lodge PDSs (including Supplementary PDSs) with ASIC.

For all remaining PDSs, the product issuer must notify ASIC of certain events.

What are the lodgement requirements for certain PDSs

- RG 168.126 A product issuer must lodge a PDS and Supplementary PDS with ASIC before it is given to a client:
- (a) for a managed investment product or CCIV security that can be traded on a financial market (or where the PDS states or implies that the product or securities can be traded on a financial market); and
 - (b) for a managed investment product of an Australian passport fund, a foreign passport fund product or a CCIV security referable to a sub-fund that is an Australian passport fund: see s1015A, 1015B(1) and 1241V.
- RG 168.127 Lodgement of the PDS or Supplementary PDS should be through the ASIC Regulatory Portal. We require consent of particular individuals to have been provided before a PDS or Supplementary PDS is lodged: see s1015B(2)–(3) and 1241V(2).

What are the notification requirements for other PDSs

- RG 168.128 If a PDS or Supplementary PDS does not need to be lodged with ASIC, the product issuer must notify ASIC when a copy of the PDS is first given to someone in a recommendation, issue or sale situation: see s1015D(2).

Note: This notification requirement does not apply to a PDS for a SMSF or to Supplementary PDSs generally.

- RG 168.129 ASIC must also be notified when:
- (a) the financial product to which a PDS or Supplementary PDS relates ceases to be available; or
 - (b) there is a change to fees and charges set out in the ‘Fees and Costs Summary’ in the PDS or Supplementary PDS: see s1015D(2)(b)–(c) and reg 7.9.16T (as modified by s6(2)(d) in ASIC Instrument 2019/1070).

Note: The Fees and Costs Summary templates are in items 201, 202 and 202A of notional Sch 10, as inserted by ASIC Instrument 2019/1070.

DRAFT

How to lodge notifications with ASIC

RG 168.130 Product issuers should notify ASIC by lodging the relevant form online as soon as practicable after an event requiring notification:

- (a) Form FS88 PDS in-use notice;
- (b) Form FS89 Notice of change to fees and charges in a PDS; or
- (c) Form FS90 Notice that a product in a PDS has ceased to be available.

RG 168.131 Lodgement should occur through the relevant online portal:

- (a) AFS licensee portal;
- (b) Company officeholder portal; or
- (c) Registered agent portal.

Note: For more information about these portals and the process to register, see Online services.

RG 168.132 There is no fee for lodging the above forms with ASIC. However, a late fee may apply if the form is lodged more than five business days after the event. The primary person who, or on whose behalf, the PDS was prepared is responsible for paying fees.

RG 168.133 If there is more than one person responsible for preparing the PDS, details of each person must be recorded in Form FS88. Any additional responsible persons must give the primary responsible person (or registered agent) the authority to notify ASIC about ongoing changes to the PDS or products in the PDS.

RG 168.134 Product issuers must also:

- (a) keep a copy of the PDS for seven years after the date of the PDS;
- (b) make a copy of the PDS available to us during that period if requested; and
- (c) comply with any reasonable request from any other person for a copy of the PDS during that period.

Relief from notification requirements

RG 168.135 We have provided relief in ASIC Corporations \(Warrants: Out-of-use notices\) Instrument 2019/148 so that product issuers need only lodge Form FS90 after all the warrants in a PDS or Supplementary PDS covering two or more warrant products cease to be available. We consider that having to lodge multiple notices for two or more warrant products in these circumstances is disproportionately burdensome compared to the regulatory benefit of these notices.

Appendix 2: ASIC's s1013DA disclosure guidelines

RG 168.137 PDSs for investment products must disclose how labour standards or environmental, social or ethical considerations are considered when deciding whether to select, retain or realise an investment: see s1013D(1)(l), s1013DA and reg 7.9.14C.

RG 168.138 Under s1013DA, ASIC can develop guidelines that must be complied with when PDSs for investment products make any claim that labour standards or environmental, social or ethical considerations are taken into account in investment decisions. This appendix sets out ASIC's s1013DA guidelines.

RG 168.139 Table 4 outlines how s1013DA applies to different investment products.

Table 4: How s1013DA applies to different investment products

Product type	Compliance guidelines
Products offering multiple investment options	The PDS should disclose, for each option, how labour standards or environmental, social or ethical considerations are taken account in investment decisions. This does not mean a separate PDS for each investment option—unless required under Pt 7.9 of the Act (e.g. s1012IA). A product issuer may be able to rely on the PDS given for each investment option under s1012IA to meet its obligation to provide information about these standards or considerations.
Products made up of different asset classes	If the extent to which labour standards or environmental, social or ethical considerations are taken into account in a product (or investment option) varies between asset classes, the product issuer must disclose for the product or option: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> the benchmark percentage of the product/option each asset class makes up (e.g. '20% is invested in property, 40% in Australian shares and 40% in international shares'); and the nature and extent of the variation (e.g. 'The environmental considerations listed are only considered for Australian and international shares. We do not apply them to our property investments.').
Products where the issuer devolves all or part of the investment decisions to others	If the product issuer devolves all or part of the investment decisions to others, the PDS should clearly state, for the benefit of the client, who is making the decisions and the degree to which reliance is being placed on information provided by others (e.g. fund managers or specialists). If the product issuer does not have ultimate responsibility for investment decisions, and does not take any labour standards or environmental, social or ethical considerations into account, the PDS should state this explicitly.

RG 168.140 Table 5 outlines some general principles that should be followed by product issuers when disclosing information under s1013DA. The detail provided in disclosures will vary from product to product.

DRAFT

Table 5: Guiding principles for disclosure details

Area of disclosure	Guidelines for details
Disclose what is 'known'	The PDS need only contain information about labour standards or environmental, social or ethical considerations that are actually known to the product issuer, their delegate, and any other person involved in the investments of a product for which the product issuer has ultimate responsibility.
Disclose what a client would 'reasonably require'	The PDS must include information that a client would 'reasonably require' for the purpose of deciding whether to acquire the financial product.
Assess 'reasonableness' from the client's perspective	The PDS does not need to include information if it would be unreasonable for a client to expect to find that information in the PDS when deciding whether to acquire the product. Reasonableness must be assessed from the client's perspective.
Explain the methodology	The product issuer must explain adequately any methodology relied on to take account of labour standards or environmental, social or ethical considerations in investment decisions (including the absence of a methodology, if there is none). This includes a general description explaining: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • how the product issuer will monitor compliance with the methodology and any timeframe for this (or a clear statement that no timeframe applies); • how the product issuer will measure the extent to which objectives associated with labour standards or environmental, social, or ethical considerations are met, or the fact that there are no such measures; and • what will or may occur when an investment no longer matches the stated investment policy and timeframe (or a clear statement that the approach is determined case by case, or the timeframe is not fixed).
Explain weightings or weighting system	The PDS must disclose the weight given to the labour standards or environmental, social or ethical considerations—if a weighting system is used. The product issuer will generally not need to disclose specific details of complex weighting systems that vary by sectors. However, it may wish to consider referring clients to a secondary source for more detailed information.
Disclose limitations	The PDS must clearly disclose if the product issuer only takes account of some labour standards or environmental, social or ethical considerations when making investment decisions. The product issuer must not give the impression that they have taken account of all standards or considerations, if that is not the case.
Disclosure addresses any product marketing emphasis	If an investment product is marketed on the basis that labour standards or environmental, social or ethical considerations are taken into account, the PDS should include more detail about how these standards or issues have been considered.
Explain all terms (including industry jargon) used	The product issuer should take care to define the terms used when describing the labour standards or environmental, social or ethical considerations in the PDS. Industry jargon should be avoided or clearly explained. If a particular standard or consideration is commonly known by a numerical or other non-descriptive formal title, a brief description of its subject matter should be included.
Identify any external providers or rating mechanisms	If the product issuer uses an external provider or rating mechanism, the PDS should identify the external provider and state where clients can find more information about their approach.

Appendix 3: Shorter PDS content requirements

RG 168.141 Table 6 provides an overview of the shorter PDS content requirements.

Note: The table refers to ‘all shorter PDS products’ where the content requirement applies to shorter PDSs for standard margin lending facilities, superannuation products, simple managed investment schemes and simple sub-fund products.

Table 6: Shorter PDS content requirements

Subject	Content requirements	Applies to	References
Page length	The page length must be: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> for standard margin lending facilities—a maximum of 4 A4 pages, eight A5 pages or 12DL pages in length; and for other products—a maximum of eight A4 pages, 16 A5 pages or 24 DL pages in length. 	All shorter PDS products	Sch 10C, cl 1(1); Sch 10D, cl 1(1); Sch 10E, cl 1(1); and Sch 10F, cl 1(1)
Font size	The font size must be at least nine points (except for the product issuer's name, address, ACN, ABN or AFS licence number and certain other information, which must be at least eight points).	All shorter PDS products	Sch 10C, cl 1(2); Sch 10D, cl 1(2); Sch 10E, cl 1(2); and Sch 10F, cl 1(2)
Summary disclaimers	The shorter PDS must include summary disclaimers in a prominent position at or near the front of the PDS. These disclaimers advise that: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> the PDS is a summary of significant information that the consumer should consider before deciding about the product; the PDS information is general information only and does not take account of the consumer's personal financial needs; and the person should obtain financial advice tailored to their personal circumstances.
